Business Disputes and Commercial Litigation

The Commercial Litigation Group of Meyner and Landis LLP represents clients in many types of commercial and corporate business disputes. Our business clients include corporations, limited liability companies, partnerships, professional corporations, professional associations and individuals. Our Commercial Litigation Group is led by seasoned litigators with decades of success representing business clients at the trial level in state and federal court and in arbitration tribunals.

Our Commercial Litigation Group assists clients in avoiding costly litigation, but when litigation is necessary, we will move quickly and decisively to protect our client's interests. We are equipped to litigate a variety of business disputes at all stages of litigation, from pre-litigation strategies to trials to post-judgment proceedings. Our attorneys have a wealth of experience litigating various types of commercial litigations, including breach of contract claims, uniform commercial code actions, domain name disputes, misappropriation of trade secrets, unlawful dissemination of proprietary and confidential business information, claims under the Computer Related Offenses Act, unfair competition claims, restrictive covenant and noncompete claims, shareholder derivative suits, business dissolution/partnership breakups and other business divorces, and a variety of business torts claims. Our Commercial Litigation Group provides prompt, efficient and responsive services utilizing litigation strategies employed by large firms without charging large law firm rates. Several of our business and commercial litigation attorneys received their training and have many years of experience from large law firms. We therefore provide the knowledge, expertise and sophistication of a large firm practice with the benefit of a small firm's personalized attention to client needs.
